WANTS SEMI-ANNUAL PAYMENT OF TAXES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—A bill to permit the semi-annual payment of taxes will be presented in the state senate, it was learned today.

The bill will embody many of the provisions of the present Minnesota law. Senator Baxter said that his bill would provide for one-half of a man's taxes being paid in January and the balance being paid in July.

The measure will be optional upon the counties, and those desiring to have all their taxes paid in January may continue to do so, if by law is enacted into law. Other counties may adopt the provisions and their taxes will be paid throughout the year in January and July.

Even though a county adopts this plan, if a tax payer prefers to pay his taxes in January, he will be permitted to do so. Such a law has been in operation in the state of Minnesota. It has worked out satisfactorily, it is thought.

JANESVILLE FAIR DATE DECIDED ON

LAST WEEK IN AUGUST OR FIRST WEEK IN SEPTEMBER DECIDED UPON.

ELECT NEW DIRECTORS

Dr. Wayne Munn, President; W. N. More, Vice President; Harry Nowlan, Secretary; Frank P. Croak, Treasurer.

Janesville's Nineteen Seventeen Fair will be held the last week in August or the first week in September. This was the decision reached last evening at the meeting of the stockholders of the Janesville Park association at the city hall, at which time they elected the new board of directors and transacted other business.

Dr. Wayne Munn, Harry O. Nowlan and W. N. More were elected directors for three years; F. P. Croak and Edward Parker, directors for two years; and W. N. More and E. H. Ransom directors for one year.

It was a most interesting meeting. Starting at eight o'clock it lasted until after midnight, and while there was considerable discussion particularly on fixing the date for the coming fair, it was all good natured and the entire meeting was most harmonious.

The report of the secretary showed that the 1916 fair had a profit of $23,957, but that the overhead expenses, insurance, on buildings, interest on mortgage and notes still left a loss on the year's activities. It was urged that efforts be made to clear up the indebtedness of the association by the sale of the thirteen thousand dollars worth of stock still in the treasury, and ways and means to this end were discussed freely without any demur being given. Rather beyond a general plan of a stock selling crusade.

When the question of deciding the date for the fair for the present year came up, the adherents of the early date urged no change be made; that it would lessen the entries in the racing, would conflict with other large events, and might prevent some of the large exhibitors from showing here in consequence.

On the other hand it was argued that the fair had become well enough established at present to demand recognition and that its fame and name had gone forth and a change in date would not be detrimental. An option of two weeks was given the directors to make their selection from.

The question of abandoning the mile track also brought forth a wide discussion, which resulted in the retention of the track. Talk of unsuccessful experiments in the past in running special trains was also brought up and the question of holding the fair over Sunday, as was done last year, was decided adversely upon.

The loss of the nineteen sixteen fair was really brought about by the lack of attendance on Saturday, the added day after Thursday's rain storm.

The value of the property was shown to be $37,163, and the capital stock is fifty thousand dollars. So that if the retaining of the stock could be disposed of the association would not only be free from debt but would have money in the treasury. It was also recommended that the fair be held in Madison in the immediate future.

Next year the association will elect its directors to take the place of Shoemaker and Ransom, who were elected for one year only. Their selection was the only change in the personnel of the board. Charles Parker, who has been retired, was elected for one year, and a decision of scattering of votes in some cases, but the men elected all had large majorities and their selection was enthusiastically received by the stockholders present.

Immediately following the stockholders' meeting a new board of directors was formally organized. Dr. Wayne Munn was elected president; motion of Edward Parker, William More was named for vice president; Harry O. Nowlan was named as secretary, and Frank P. Croak as treasurer.

The appointment of a superintendent of speed was left until some later date. The board of directors at that time other matters will be taken up.

PRESIDENT WOULD SPEED UP CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 19.—An effort to clear the legislative calendar of additional measures before the next house with questionable political status comes into power, President Wilson conferred at the capitol today with the senate committee.

For two hours he went over the program outlined in his opening address to congress last summer, laying particular stress upon the railroad question. He said he still desired enactment of the whole program before March 4th, if possible, in addition to revenue legislation the president also urged legislation upon a corrupt practices bill, the Webb bill, to permit domestic corporations to maintain corrective selling agencies, water power and mineral leasing measure, and the corporate citizenship bill.

BRANDS UNTERMAYER MESSAGE AN INSULT

Washington, Jan. 19.—A telegram from Samuel Untermyer, protesting against the use of the name of the Reichstag in its latest session refrained from doing. Nevertheless the rumors which were heard yesterday that the session would be marked by most vigorous attacks on Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg turned out to be incorrect. The speech of Heydebrand, conservative leader, who is associated with the Conservative National Liberal parties, in favor of a more unrestricted use of submarines, was found more moderate than an earlier occasion and was not characterized by attacks on the United States.

Bethmann, minister of public works, and the chancellor's second in the cabinet, said in a carefully worded speech in behalf of the government.

This grave and difficult situation requires discussion of what ways and means are to be adopted.

He added, however, that he considered any expression of the government's views at present to be unduly premature. Responsibility for their position rested on the chancellor and he appealed to the decision of the house to support his difficult task by refraining from criticism of his policy. He appealed which proceedings showed unnecessary.

It was commented that even Dr. Von Heydebrand, in advocating unrestricted submarine warfare, demanded only at such time as the emperor and field marshal found it to be advisable. He said:

"If we are to win a victory, it is absolutely imperative to use the weapons which give us the possibility of winning a victory against the strongest adversary—England. Our military authorities, the higher command and emperor, find it suitable and timely to make the necessary use of unlimited submarine warfare. The German and Japanese people will be prepared to abide by the consequences."

Liberal Leaders' Attitude. London, Jan. 19.—The demand that neutral states shall not be allowed to interfere with Germany's struggle for victory was made at the opening of the Prussian diet yesterday by Herr Friedberg, leader of the national liberal party, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to Reuters. Herr Friedberg was one of a number of speakers who urged a vigorous prosecution of the war and increased submarine activities.

He said: "We must expect from every neutral that he do not lay stress on his own interests where for it is a fight for existence. Such interests must not prevent us from gaining a peace that will satisfy German aspirations and safeguard the world from new and other catastrophes."

Answer to England. Amsterdam, via London, Jan. 19.—The Cologne Gazette, commenting on the note sent to England by the secretary of foreign affairs, said: "The note is a falsification of history, apparently aimed to wipe out the bad impression made in large circles of the American press by the note of the Prussian diet yesterday by Herr Friedberg, leader of the national liberal party, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to Reuters. SALESMANSHIP THE FEATURE OF TALKS AT INSURANCE MEET

GEORGE S. PARKER GIVES INTERESTING TALK ON PRINCIPLES OF SALESMANSHIP.

STUDIES PROSPERITY

Twenty-five Agents From Southern Wisconsin Here for Insurance Conference.

No matter whether a man is selling fountain pens or life insurance there are certain fundamental factors in human nature that must be recognized to make his salesmanship effective. This was the point urged by George S. Parker of the Parker Pen Company last evening at the Grand hotel at a banquet of the Southern Wisconsin general agency of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, whose members are assembled here for a two days' insurance conference.

"There are many who follow the profession of salesmanship," said Mr. Parker, "but there are comparatively few real salesmen. I consider a successful salesman just as much among the professional class as the lawyer or doctor who makes a success of his chosen profession."

"To be a successful salesman, a man must be forceful, aggressive, diplomatic, persevering, good natured; he must have the courage to accept temporary defeat gracefully, and he must understand psychology in all its phases. Above all he must have the underlying principle of honesty, confidence in his house, confidence in the goods he sells, and the belief that the commodity which he is selling is needed by the man with whom he is attempting to do business."

Mr. Parker, who is a well-known insurance agent, said that the subject will be thoroughly understood by the one who is receiving these ideas. In accepting the competitor's goods, the salesman who, when temporarily beaten, gets impatient or sarcastic, and if he has an opportunity, after losing out, of going back to the dealer and slandering his more successful competitor and at the same time, by inference, at least, telling the dealer what bad judgment and poor taste he displayed in accepting the competitor's goods."

In continuing, Mr. Parker cautioned against the knocking of competitors, urging that true frankness is desirable, that comparisons may be drawn between your own article and that of your competitor which will undoubtedly show your own superiority without a bit of knocking. "I would want him to leave it to my intelligence to make the decision and to see the difference between the competing articles. Any attempt on his part to hand me the rubber stamp decision would result disastrously for him."

"Sincerity, honesty, character, and knowledge of the subject are to my mind the great assets of a life insurance agent. The man who has these forces backed by a company recognized by all for its fair dealing is bound to be successful. One reason why men carrying the insurance policy are so slow to come into contact with men of the calibre I have described. The agent who secures business by trickery who verbally promises returns not stated on the policy, relying upon the lack of knowledge of the insured to check him, is doomed."

In closing, Mr. Parker cited a few principles of salesmanship which apply to all its branches, and which are essential to any real success in that profession. They are: "One's honesty can never be impressed save by some evident self-denial. Without some incentive to prompt action or decision, they will usually delay and forget. People don't like problems. Present them only the worked-out solutions."

Senator John M. Whitehead in his talk on "Why I Believe in Life Insurance," stated that it was the great duty of every man to get aside certain sums to be used in the settlement of his estate after his death; that no man should be allowed to go into debt which was not covered by insurance; that life insurance was the logical way to provide for those people who were dependent upon the insured for their support; and lastly, that in insurance was the most satisfactory way to provide for some philanthropic work.

"Though I carry probably more insurance than the average man, I have never bought policies on the suggestion of an agent, since the first one I got. I am a great believer in life insurance, but I have made the mistake of scattering my policies throughout too many companies and also have taken too much preferential, large premium insurance instead of staying with one company and making my policies of the straight life insurance type."

"Straight life insurance is a beneficial institution and should be encouraged in every way by individuals, by business, and by the government; the other kind of insurance is too much like an investment and this justifiable as to such, should not be regarded in the same light as straight insurance. A man has no right to speculate on his own life for his own benefit. At this time there is a general tendency to want the straight life policies on the part of companies and fraternalists that have heretofore handled only the preferential insurance."

"The beauty of life insurance is that it represents ready money, and ready money is what is needed upon the death of the wage earner."

"The beauty of life insurance because it has something back of it; otherwise it would be worthless. Insurance cannot be manufactured out of nothing. A man should not expect something for nothing in insurance; he has no right to anything which he does not put into it. I believe further that everyone should take out as much insurance as he can reasonably carry. I would urge men to carry all straight life insurance, but not so much that they will be burdened with the tax of too great yearly demands."

"The management of money is a profession, and a company like this huge insurance corporation has the means to train its men in scientific investment. If your money is in insurance, it will be wisely invested than if entrusted to the rather untrained hand of the individual."

As for state insurance and regulation, I do not believe that it is a question of the state should engage in, and further I believe that the best thing the legislature can do to aid such a beneficial institution is to leave it alone, to refrain from any attempted regulation."

In reviewing the financial and commercial progress of Wisconsin during the past decade, Mr. Smith of a few figures which showed in a striking manner the extent of its development, and likewise of the prosperity which is now ours. "We think in terms of large figures; we base estimates in terms of billions now instead of millions."

"If prosperity of any particular locality or country can be studied most successfully by a review of the land values and of the savings of the people. For this purpose I have gathered a few figures which show the great jumps in land values throughout the state which have taken place in the past ten years. They vary in different counties, sometimes because of the growth of cities, sometimes because of the increased value of the farms and of rural industries. On an average throughout the state the land values have increased in value $26 per acre in the ten year period from 1906 to 1916."

"Take another instance of growing prosperity; the increased number of banks. In 1906 there were 526 banks in this state; in 1916 there were 874. For the state banks the surplus and profits have jumped in this period of ten years from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000. Loans and discounts have increased from $6 million to $21 million. Deposits have gone up from $5 million to $26 million. The total deposits for Rock county in 1906 were $7,200,000; in 1916 this amount had increased to $12,200,000."

Mr. Smith concluded his remarks with a summary of the industries and crops in which Wisconsin either leads the nation or takes a prominent place. A fact of great importance to the farmer is that the money on deposit in the banks is more than any other class of citizens."

M. H. O. Williams of Milwaukee, the assistant superintendent of agencies of the Northwestern Mutual, reviewed the business of the past year which had been increased twenty-five million dollars in that one year. He featured his talk with an emphasis of a few points of salesmanship that had been brought out during the evening, urging warning against the practice of knocking and the use of the superlative and exaggerated description in selling insurance. In conclusion Mr. Williams stated that he believed the company owed its phenomenal success and development since its incorporation here in Janesville sixty years ago, to two things: its wise and careful investment policy, and the great loyalty of its agents throughout the entire state.

The sessions of the conference were concluded with a meeting this morning. At the banquet last evening there were twenty-five agents from various parts of Southern Wisconsin, in addition to a number of speakers and guests of honor. The agents from out of the city in attendance at the conference are: R. K. Dorr, P. D. Brong, P. G. Sullivan, H. D. Hollenbeck, Kenosha; W. F. McCaughey, W. F. McCaughey, M. S. Edwards, F. S. Gordon, Racine; H. Sorenson, D. E. Slack, Richland Center; E. L. McCoy, Lancaster; I. E. Mann, Platteville; P. R. Run, Okego; C. Morris, Dodgeville; O. C. Brady, Bloomington; S. Martindale, S. Martindale, Jr., La Crosse; S. C. Fish, Whitewater; M. E. Baltzer, Monroe; W. A. Lee, Janesville; J. B. Sullivan, Janesville; F. A. Blackman, Janesville.

JAMES G. GREGORY IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Prominent Engineer on C. M. & St. P. Railroad Succumbs After an Illness of Several Days.

James G. Gregory, for seventeen years a resident of Janesville, and a prominent engineer of prominence on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, passed away last evening at his home, 542 North Washington street, after an illness of several days' duration.

Garner Gregory was born Nov. 1, 1851 at Champlain, New York. He was married in 1872 to Ellen Compton and in 1878 he came to Racine, Wis., where he entered the employ of the C. M. & St. P. railroad as engine dispatcher. Later, in 1893, he took up his residence at Madison, and in 1901 he located in Janesville, which had been his home until his death.

Mr. Gregory early in life started in the railroad business. In 1888 he entered the employ of the Lake Chicago and Mississippi railroad and he was later transferred to the Chicago and Rock Island. He was soon given a regular run and in 1893 was placed in the Madison and Davis Junction. It was this same run, with Janesville as the terminal point, that he held since coming to this city and sound judgment, he commanded the respect of fellow employees in the railroad business, and was deeply revered by friends and acquaintances wherever he went. He persevered with unswerving loyalty and devotion in whatever cause he was enlisted, always living his life with high integrity and a faithful, thoughtful and high-minded man, and his whole-hearted appreciation of the things worth while. In his home, in his church and among men he was ever the same Christian gentleman.

Mr. Gregory was prominent in the Trinity Episcopal church, serving as vestryman since 1902 and junior warden for term of years. He was also a Mason in advanced standing and was connected with the local Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, holding the position of chief engineer. In 1904, the local B. L. E. chapter was named in his honor.

Besides his wife, Mr. Gregory is survived by seven children: Mrs. Emma Persons, Exeland, Wis.; Mrs. Alice Richards, Rockford, Ill.; Miss Florence Gregory of this city; Walter R. Gregory of Rockford; Charles W. Gregory and James G. Gregory, Jr., both of this city. He also leaves two brothers, William W. Gregory of Hot Springs, S. D., and Albert Gregory of Reading, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Ann Gregory of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. Annie Dixon of Moores, N. Y. He also leaves nine grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday Jan. 22, at Trinity church, the Rev. Henry Willmann officiating. The hour will be announced later. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

HOW TENANTS MAY SECURE OWN FARMS UNDER NEW U. S. ACT

Explains Use of First Mortgage on Purchase Price in Aiding Landless to Become Farm Owners.

(By Frank R. Wilson of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau.)

Washington, Jan. 19.—The question has been frequently asked, "How can a tenant who has not saved 50 per cent of the purchase price of land make use of the federal farm loan act to get land of his own?"

The answer is, by means of a first mortgage given under the farm loan act for 50 per cent of the purchase price, provided this does not exceed 20 per cent of the appraised value, and a second mortgage given to the tenant owner of the land or to a bank or private money lender, for the balance of the purchase price.

It must be borne in mind that the amount which can be borrowed under the farm loan act is limited to 50 per cent of the appraised value of the land, and this is written on the assumption that the tenant will not pay more for this land than it is actually worth, or in other words, its appraised value, contemplated under the farm loan act.

To furnish a concrete example: Suppose John Smith, a tenant, wants to purchase 100 acres of land, valued at $50 an acre. The total purchase price would be $5,000, but John Smith has not the money to buy it.

Under the farm loan act, Smith could be entitled to borrow $2,500 of the appraised value, if this appraised value should be the same as the purchase price. This would leave $2,500 to be handled by a second mortgage. The amount borrowed under the farm loan act could be paid to the original owner of the land and a second mortgage executed for the difference.

The original owner would thus get a satisfactory payment down, and if he had confidence in the purchaser, he would probably be willing to accept a second mortgage for the balance, divided into ten annual payments.

Here is the way it would figure out: The first mortgage of $2,500 given under the farm loan act would draw the interest at 6 per cent, and would be paid off in the installment plan through a period of forty years by making annual payments of $155.95.

Now let us say that the second mortgage would draw 8 per cent and could be arranged so as to be retired in ten years. The interest on this $2,500 mortgage at 8 per cent would be $200 the first year and one-tenth of the $2,500 would be $250.

Adding the interest and the one-tenth annual payment would mean a payment of $400 on the second mortgage the first year. The second year payment would be $355 and the following payments through the ten years to retire the second mortgage, both principal and interest, would be $370, $355, $340, $325, $310, $295, $280 and $265.

On top of all annual payments would be the $155.95 interest and amortization payments on the first mortgage to the federal land bank so that the total payments, interest and principal, on the two mortgages would begin at $555.95, and dwindle down to $209.95 the tenth year, and after that only $155.95 each year.

If the terms of the second mortgage could be arranged for longer than ten years, the annual payments would be correspondingly reduced.

These payments are no greater than the average tenant pays for rent. The first year payment on both of these mortgages would amount to approximately $5.50 an acre. These would gradually reduce until the tenth year he would be paying $4.20 an acre and each year after that he would be paying only $1.50 per acre per year. Instead of being paid as rental this money is applied on the purchase price of the land.

Interest rates quoted in this instance are suggestions only and are not to be taken as an official statement of what rates will prevail under the farm loan act.

NEED CO-OPERATION IN HANDLING TOBACCO CROP

The 1916 crop, if rightly handled, offers Wisconsin growers a whole the best opportunity to discount old troubles and build future prosperity that has presented itself in many years. This is the belief of men who are familiar with tobacco cropping in this state.

The highest returns since the earliest years of the industry in Wisconsin have probably been realized this year. Less inferior and damaged tobacco will be placed in the hands of packers and manufacturers. Buyers were delighted with the quality of the crop for as far as could be judged from field conditions, and except for some local frost injury, the season's yield has been uniformly satisfactory.

Co-operation of growers and packers is now a vital necessity, in order that the best precautions known to the business may be used to deliver the crop to the manufacturer in the best of condition. This is the comment made by James Johnson, college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin.

The early appearance of casing weather has meant early packing in the warehouse. Tobacco packed early in the season is especially subject to mold or black rot infection, owing to high moisture conditions, and the tendency of leaf tissue.

Growers should try to prevent the crop from coming into high case, while the packers should take extra precautions in handling tobacco in this condition, says Mr. Johnson. "Such crops are usually thoroughly bulk sweated before packing or not put away until the late in the season."

The desirability of either of these methods will depend upon the purposes for which the leaf is to be used. Most packers have their own individual methods of handling tobacco in order to avoid damage in sweating. However a careful analysis of such methods is necessary.

RURAL WORKERS JOIN IN TEACHERS' MEET

Workers in farmers' clubs, rural churches and schools, will meet for an earnest session with the Southern Wisconsin Teachers' Association at its annual convention at Madison, February 9th.

Owing to the fact that the original program of the Wisconsin Country Life conference included special sections to consider problems relating to the educational work in the state's country communities, C. J. Calpin, secretary of the conference, has decided to merge the sessions of this welfare organization with that of the teachers' convention. In this way the benefit of opinions and open discussion from all parties interested in educational improvement will be more easily secured.

Special topics have been prepared for the Country Life conference section of the convention, which will be held in the Madison High School auditorium, on Friday of Farmers' week.

The addresses to be given during the afternoon session are at the luncheon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church, immediately after the convention, are scheduled as follows:

"Ways to Get Farm Boys and Girls Interested in High Schools," H. F. Barker, principal, Fredrick high school; "Relation of the High School to the Country Community," E. M. Miles, principal, Waupaca high school; "The High Schools in Relation to Surrounding Rural Schools," P. J. Holt, Sun Prairie high school; and "Atmosphere of Teaching High School Agriculture," P. H. Neverman, principal, New Richmond high school.

THE WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Hats. The hat is an ingenious contraption invented by man to give the top of his head something to do.

But its usefulness doesn't stop there. A man can get a lot of fun out of his hat if he just knows how.

Some men have reduced their hats to a science. They make them pasting, they make them employment. They take them out windy days and chase them. Or mix them up at restaurants and fight about them with strangers.

Else to do they use them to talk through.

The hat is what some men always pass and no woman ever does.

MAY APPOINT U. S. ADVISOR FOR REPUBLIC OF PANAMA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Panama, Jan. 19.—The national assembly, which has been convened in an extraordinary session, will have before it the suggestion of the United States government that a fiscal supervisor be appointed for the Republic of Panama. The American government has been insistent on this point for some time, a position being that corrupt or inefficient control of the country's finances is the greatest handicap to good local government.

1917 FAIR.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Janesville Park association, held on Thursday, it was decided that the date for the coming fair for 1917 should be set for either the last week in August or the first week in September. In past years the fair has been held early in August and conditions have been such that the attendance from the rural districts has not been as large as it is hoped a later date will attract. The Janesville fair is an established institution. Its reputation for its fast horses, its fine stock and its wonderful exhibits as a whole has spread throughout the country and it would be surprising if the fair held this summer is not the best in point of exhibits, attendance and general results of any one of the smaller fairs in the middle west. The board of directors elected are most earnest in their efforts to make the enterprise a success and they will work in accord with the one object in view.

PAST VS. PRESENT.

Vital statistics are usually regarded as following quite nearly certain fixed ratios. Of recent years, however, there have been the suggestions from many quarters that high prices were affecting the marriage rate. One of the most notable instances comes from San Francisco, where the number of marriages in 1916 was but 5790, as against 8,879 for 1915. The authorities attribute the falling off to high living costs.

It suggests that the love in a cottage is growing less powerful. Certainly our forefathers considered but little any such matter. They did not have to meet high prices, but they confronted conditions far more burdensome. One never hears that the men who settled the Far West and the plain states ever hesitated about marriage.

On the eve of their adventurous departure into pioneer life, they took out to themselves wives. No matter how toilsome and difficult the conditions, they raised large families. Their children labored to subdue the forest and plant the soil, and great, prosperous states are the result of their confidence and courage.

If our ancestors found the prices of the necessities of life going up, they went without, or they raised supplies in their own back yards. It never occurred to them to deny themselves marriage or postpone it.

The young people of today feel keenly the social demands of their times. It is not merely a question of earning a living. They want comfortable houses with modern plumbing and artistic furniture. They desire to belong to the clubs and to own automobiles and travel around the country. So they postpone marriage until they have some positive assurance of the future. It promises financial and pleasurable living, but it does not produce a rugged type of citizenship nor a generation of working children.

INARTISTIC COINAGE.

"In one respect at least the public taste has deteriorated," says the Wall Street Journal. "Each new issue of coins seems less artistic than the last. Our coins were formerly worthily American, and the high quality of the design was broadly appreciated. The old twenty-dollar gold piece was recognized, at home and abroad, as perhaps the handsomest coin of its kind in the world. It was a work of art, but with perhaps a single exception, it would be presumptuous to apply that word to the new issues."

"There is one artistic coin of recent date, the Buffalo nickel. It is American and characteristic, and the single objection to it brings but one of the false canons upon which our coinage is designed. It is said that the value of the coin is not stated clearly enough. It is wonderful how this foolish surmise. Nobody mistakes the Buffalo nickel for anything else, nor would a cent be less recognizably a cent or a quarter a quarter, with no legend of value. Whoever has seen any of our coins once never looks at the figures again for the rest of his life. Are we regulating the artistic qualities of our coinage by the kindergarten convenience of Ellis Island?"

"Publicity for the design before adoption would greatly improve their quality, and prevent change merely for change's sake. Who will pretend that the Liberty head on the new silver coinage is an improvement on the old, and that was nothing to brag about? It is insignificant and without character, altogether lacking in breadth of treatment and imagination, two qualities which it need hardly be said have nothing to do with the size of the coin. We seem to be drifting into a bastard French style wholly devoid of French art."

"It has been truly said that art admits of no qualifying adjective. Either it is art or it is not. It is true there have been recent attempts to convince us that ugliness is art. They have not succeeded, and still less can the officers of the mint convince us that utterly uninspired mediocrity is art. It is a national misfortune that such an opportunity to cultivate the taste of all classes is so completely thrown away."

CAR SHORTAGE.

There have been many complaints this winter about the lack of freight cars. Manufacturers have been unable to get raw material, coal has been held up, and failure to get food shipments has led to high prices in many cases.

It seems too bad that business should be thus held up when a few years ago railroad equipment companies were running on half time. It is the fault of the American business temperament that it feels either like a prince or a pauper. When business is good it orders beyond its needs. When business is bad it can't believe that it will ever be better, and it will not anticipate the coming of better times.

The next time a period of depression comes, the business community should not be too downcast. Then is the time to build freight cars and fill other gaps in our commercial system. Equipment can be secured at much cheaper rates at such periods. Never yet has there been a depression that was not succeeded by good times.

Probably the reason why men's clothing styles won't change much this spring is that the men obstinately and perversely refuse to pay more for new fashions that aren't any better.

Many people don't pay their January bills the first half of the month because there is plenty of time before February 1, and they don't pay them the latter half because February will be here so soon.

It is the principal duty of the legislature to see that the governor does not do anything, and the principal duty of the governor to see that the legislature doesn't do anything.

With wheat at $2.00 a bushel, some of those people that used to make the funny jokes about the country people are now reading the ads of "Farms for sale."

There is intense indignation about statesmen who leak information to Wall street on the part of those who got caught on the wrong side of the market.

The sight-seers are going down at Washington anxiously hoping to see the Washington monument and the congressmen with their feet on the desks.

Although the congressmen should be very cautious about speculation it is probably safe for them to take out postal savings accounts at 2 per cent.

It is clear that the great majority of those 6,000 applicants for jobs in the farm loan banks are soon going to pronounce the new law a total failure.

There is a powerful demand for investigation of the stock market tips at Washington, as the public wants to know where it can get them.

The waste of money in shallow rivers and harbors is bitterly denounced by those who want to put in marble postoffices at crossroads towns.

More gold finds are reported in Alaska, and with true bonanza spirit the fortune-hunters are prepared to sink two dollars to get one out.

After long and careful investigation, it is believed that the leak investigating committee will find that there has been a leak.

The constituents feel better about the waste of government money after they get their share of the useless free garden seeds.

The people who make a thorough study of newspaper advertising don't complain about the cost of living as much as some others.

Being urged to go in for healthful winter sports, many people sit down to three hours of bridge in a stuffy room.

SEEING STARS.

It's a pleasant thing to wander in the evening and to ponder on the stars ablinking yonder and so many miles afar. If you're gum or in a pet you soon will find your cares forget you.

Are the petty things that fret you seem as distant as a star. Be it hills or aching molars or perhaps domestic chollers. You can put them on the rollers with all others of your woes. When your taste buds' bitter juices stars will scatter your abuses.

And a view of them conduces to a very sweet repose. So when we are moved to mutter, quarreling with our bread and butter, Let us look at something utter, something boundless, cosmic, vast.

In the gloomiest of cases let us view the countless spaces. Of the interstellar spaces and our cares seem trite at last.

The Rose in History. Every continent on the globe, with the exception of Australia, produces wild roses. There can be little doubt that the rose is one of the earth's oldest flowers. In Egypt it is depicted on a number of very early monuments, believed to date from 3500 to 3000 B. C. Rose water, or the essence of roses, is mentioned by Homer in the "Iliad," and the allusion made to the flower in the Proverbs of Solomon indicates that it was well known to the early Israelites.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Does "happy love" ever amount to "any" thing serious?

(2) Is it natural for a girl of fourteen to be interested in boys near her own age? I mean to consider them as friends and comrades, not platonically. Some of my girl friends consider me bold to take a liking to some of my schoolmates. This is not even when friendship, and so is it wrong?

(3) Would it be all right for a girl to visit a dancing school some evening to get her? We would go and come together.

(4) If a boy schoolmate whom you know by sight and who evidently knows you in this way speaks on the street, would you speak to him and in fact have spoken several times. I have never replied, although I have met him often. I am undecided whether it would be all right to be unkind. I should like to know the boy very much.

(5) I suppose it does once in a while, but not very often.

(6) It is natural for girls of your age to want boys for friends and comrades, but very often girls of fourteen are shy and do not make but friends easily.

(7) No, it would not be all right. Girls of your age should not attend a dancing school at night, even when accompanied by boys. It would be much worse for two girls to go alone.

(8) It is all right to speak to schoolmates.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read with great interest your advice in regard to kissing. Of course I would not kiss every boy I was with, but usually I do it when I am asked, such as I like to be kissed. I like to be kissed and think about it. The only thing that makes me not like kissing is that I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss. I want to be kissed, but I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss. I want to be kissed, but I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: May I express my opinion about kissing? Of course boys like to kiss girls, but there are many boys who will go with a girl any length of time and not kiss her. I don't suppose that "Constant Reader" or "Teenager" went with boys any length of time and were not kissed by boys. "Eighteen" said she has three brothers. I wonder if they ever kissed a girl. I think those people who say they never do those things or would not are generally the worst to do that sort of thing. I agree with you in many ways and think your advice is good. I have gone with a lot of boys and certainly did not kiss every one. I don't think though, as a rule, that boys lose their respect for girls if girls allow themselves to be kissed. I have heard many young men say that they would not go with girls any length of time and not be kissed.

How many girls do you suppose there are who would show reason in the number of boys they let kiss them? They become indifferent and think that kisses don't amount to much after all. Boys feel their difference and after a few evenings of kissing they grow disgusted and find some other girl.

You have heard many young men say that they would not go with girls any length of time and not be kissed. I think the young men and see if they know what it is to be faithful to a girl. Of course they like girls they can kiss, but when they want to be kissed first and will not kiss them, just because they happen to want it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read with great interest your advice in regard to kissing. Of course I would not kiss every boy I was with, but usually I do it when I am asked, such as I like to be kissed. I like to be kissed and think about it. The only thing that makes me not like kissing is that I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss. I want to be kissed, but I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss.

Little girl, if you kiss boys for thrills you will have to pay the price. There is someone who will disagree with me when I say that I cannot kiss every boy who wants to in order to get thrills and keep your own reputation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read with great interest your advice in regard to kissing. Of course I would not kiss every boy I was with, but usually I do it when I am asked, such as I like to be kissed. I like to be kissed and think about it. The only thing that makes me not like kissing is that I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss. I want to be kissed, but I don't know what to say when a boy asks me to kiss.

From what I saw of her while she was here I should say that she was a little girl who would go anywhere her husband's business called him and make the best of it. Tom smiled at this picture of Marjory's unselfish devotion, but his father's championing his wife was a salve to his wounded feelings.

"She certainly has put her shoulder to the wheel and helped in every way possible since I was taken sick," Tom agreed warmly.

"I tell you, Tom, if a woman loves a man she will do anything for him. That little girl has the making of a fine woman in her. I don't care how she has done in the past. Every woman has an infinite capacity to sacrifice and serve," Tom smiled.

"Some have the capacity so covered over with selfishness that it is never discovered, but it is there, and if the selfishness would fall away like a cast-off garment, I imagine that what has happened to your wife, and what has happened to the woman who is now going back to selfish demanding."

"I imagine there was very little to arouse a fine enthusiasm in any woman," remarked Tom with a sad, don't little grin.

Both of you were unbelievably young," rejoined the father; "but you will grow up and grow old. He laid a kind hand on Tom's shoulder and smiled into his face. "And Marjory will take the lead in the developing process. Trust the woman for that."

"Good! It is as good as done. Now you had better get down to the city tomorrow and talk the whole thing over with her. What do you say?" Tom stretched out his hand and they shook. The best of relations were restored between them.

Household Hints

POTTED MEATS.

There are many occasions when a little jar of potted meat is very welcome and the following directions if followed closely will prove easy: Half pound cooked meat, two tablespoons butter, salt, pepper, dash of nutmeg, half teaspoon beef extract, a little of the left over gravy.

Put the meat and butter in a small smooth paste. Pour butter into same; add the seasonings and gravy; put in jar and stand dish in a pan of hot water until meat is warm. Stir well. A little melted mutton fat poured over the top will preserve it for future use.

Potted Oat Tongue.—One cooked oat tongue, six tablespoons butter, ground nutmeg, mustard, one teaspoon mushroom catsup, dash red pepper; proceed as for common meat. Veal and ham may be made in the same way.

Slices of mush, floured and fried, add materially to a dish of leftover chicken.

A small amount of chicken creamed and served in nests, goes further. Bread boxes are also great helps. One small loaf may be trimmed of crust and the inside removed, leaving a box with sides about half an inch in thickness.

Butter lightly and toast a pretty brown in the oven. Fill with the creamed chicken and serve a piece of toast with each helping of chicken.

Smaller boxes may be prepared for individual servings with an egg dropped into each box.

Make a paste of grated cheese and milk, spread on the top of the box.

around the egg, and drop some on the egg itself.

Return to the oven and cook till the egg is set.

Canned corned beef, if ground fine in the meat chopper, mixed with an equal quantity of mashed potatoes and the stiffly beaten white of an egg, can be formed into balls and fried in fat, making a tasty dish and a hearty one.

TO BAKE POTATOES.

In these days of high prices we must use potatoes with the skins on if we want to get the maximum amount of nourishment from them.

Here is a new way to bake them: Wash as many as are required for the meal and remove a slice from the end while damp, wrap them in oiled paper and tie.

Place in moderate oven and bake for an hour. Do not open until ready to serve. They will have no hard crust to throw away and the skin will be found tender enough to eat.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

AUTOINTOXICATION SERIES.
V. The Varieties of Rest.

The village doctor, has been four days gathering forty dollars' worth of diagnostic data in the case of a nervous, unweary, yellow, drooping, constipated, depressed, chronically tired woman, 35 by 64 by 114 pounds, who has cold hands and feet, "liver spots," dark rings under her eyes, "acid" and a whole collection of snap-diagnoses and disappointing treatments.

The remedy is physiological rest. "What?" Friend husband again. "You see he has just tried loose the same old advice she has had from every charlatan in the city."

Gently, gently. What is the matter? There are several varieties of rest. Physiological rest is one kind. Trouble with the ordinary kinds is they don't rest the tired, the eating muscle. Physiological rest will take the strain off the eating muscle and give it a chance to catch up on the job. In order to obtain physiological rest certain exercises must be indulged in. The first exercise consists in lying down.

But she has been lying down most of the time for years back. She has relaxed thoroughly.

No. Not the tired place. Please don't interrupt. A doctor's time is not to be wasted. She must lie down with the hips at least a foot above the level of the shoulders. Arrange a couch or table for the purpose. Lay her on her back, knees drawn up, the places one hand upon the upper left hand corner of the abdomen and strokes several times downward slowly and gently. Then the strokes several times from right to left across the abdomen. Finally several times from lower right side to upper right side. This gives the colon a great lift. It takes the strain off the tired place.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A Mouth that Tastes.

What causes a foul taste which is present all the time regardless of cleanliness and mouthwashes? (E. E. E.)

ANSWER.—Pus pockets in the gums, decayed teeth, diseases tonsils, chronic sinus disease, adenoids, chronic bronchitis, disease, arteriosclerosis, and the internal use of certain medicines may cause an unpleasant taste in the mouth.

Fever a Conservative Process.

Kindly give your opinion of the use of acetanilide for the reduction of fever in acute illnesses. (Nurse.)

ANSWER.—It is seldom justified because acetanilide is a drug which weakens the heart, destroys blood corpuscles and interferes with oxygenation of tissues. Rarely is it wise to attempt to reduce the fever of an acute illness by any means other than the measures directed at removing or neutralizing the cause.

Side Talks

By RUTH CAMERON

Last summer, in the course of a walking trip, we stopped at a lighthouse which was a favorite point of interest to tourists.

The keeper had two children and one daughter, and with our camera. Then we asked the keeper for his name and postoffice address so that we could send him copies.

He gave it in a lackluster, uninterested tone which surprised me. "I suppose your children have their pictures taken so often that it isn't much of a novelty," I probed. "Yes," he said. "I would wonder if the folks take their pictures."

"You must have quite a collection?" "That's the last we hear of it," he said. "I see the folks always take our address and promise to send the pictures, but most always that's the last we hear of it. And then I didn't wonder any more that his voice was lack-luster."

It is so dangerously easy to make generous promises!

And equally easy, evidently, to forget the people go into the country and, struck with the comparative meagerness of opportunity in certain lines, they give off promises to share their right and left. They get back to the city they will certainly send magazines and books and postcards and snapshots, and good news and what not. Then they go back and the country folks watch for the postman to fulfill some of these promises, and watch in vain—unless perchance, like my friend of the lighthouse, they have too much bitter experience to expect any fulfillment.

The Wickedest Thing She Ever Did.

Do you remember what was the wickedest thing she ever did, and she tells about going off on a coaching trip and one summer that I would send him some postcards, and then to put it off and put it off until it was too late.

To disappoint old people or children comes pretty near being one of the unpardonable sins.

But, someone pleads, one is so busy these days that one simply does not have time to do all the kind things one wants to.

Created. But one does not need to make careless promises to do them. It's selfish never to promise, but isn't it more selfish to promise, raise people's hopes, and then not keep one's promise.

Now, please, don't let this make you afraid to promise. But rather, move

TALENT AND CHARACTER.

The difference between talent and character is adroitness to keep the old and trodden and courage to make a new road to fresh and better goals. Character makes power which fortifies all the company, by making them see that much is possible and excellent that was not thought of.—Emerson.

GINGLES' JINGLES

"Sure, I'm Irish and proud of it," said Pat Hogan unto Mike: "Tis the Emerald Isle looks good to me—her dear old sod I like, and it pleases me to meet a pal from that old native spot, where we yielded the shillalah, where we toasted and we've fought; there is something that unites us, there is something makes us cling to old Ireland and the shamrock, and how proudly do we sing all the good old Irish songs we used to sing when over there; sure, they seem to touch the spot—there's nothing like the Irish air. Yes, 'tis good to have a country that you call as 'home, sweet home,' you can ramble back in memory, too, no matter where you roam. We should all hold fast to tender ties that bind us strong, indeed, to the country of our fathers—that's a thing we all should heed. But we live in old America, let each one of us say, 'cheer the stars and stripes forever—nothing like the Linkin' Single U. S. A."

Her Money Troubles

They get more vexatious as the cost of foods climbs skyward. Meat, eggs and vegetables are almost beyond the family purse. Happy is the housewife who knows Shredded Wheat, its low cost and its high food value. A better balanced ration than meat or eggs and costs much less. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with milk or cream make a complete, perfect meal, supplying all the nutriment needed for a half day's work at a cost of a few cents. Delicious for any meal with milk or cream, or with stewed fruits. Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Dinner Stories

The mining stock promoter dashed into his office and locked the door. "Where can I hide?" he cried. "The police are coming."

"Get into the simplified card index case," said the head clerk. "I defy anyone to find anything there."

"Yes," said a traveling man, "I was once out of sight of land. If the Atlantic ocean twenty-four days."

Another man spoke up: "On the Pacific ocean one time I didn't see a bald man knocked the ashes from his chair and contributed his bit."

"I started to cross the Kaw river at Topeka in a skiff once," he said, "and was out of sight of land before I reached the other side."

"What!" demanded the man who had spun the first yarn. "The Kaw is not more than 300 feet wide at Topeka."

"Quite true," said the bald man quietly. "The skiff turned over and I sank twice."

"Nurse," moaned the convalescent patient, "can't I have something to eat? I'm starving."

"Yes," the doctor said, "you could start taking solids today, but you must begin slowly," she said. Then she held out a teaspoonful of tapoca, "We must only advance by degrees," she added.

He sucked the spoon dry and felt more tantalizingly hungry than ever. He begged for a second spoonful, but she shook her head, saying that everything at the start must be done in similarly small proportions. Presently he summoned her again to his bedside.

"Nurse," he gasped, "bring me a postage stamp. I want to read."

(Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons)

The sharp crack of a rifle cut off the words; a bullet tore like a lightning-bolt across De Spain's neck, crashed through a mahogany pilaster back of the bar, and embedded itself in the wall. The shot had been aimed from the street for his head. The noisy room instantly hushed. Spectators sat glued to their chairs. White-faced players leaped motionless against the tables. De Spain alone had acted; all that the bartenders could ever remember after the single rifle shot was seen.

He Whirled and Shot Instantly Toward the Heavy Report.

ing his hand go back as he whirled and shot instantly toward the heavy report. He had whipped out his gun and fired sideways through the window at the sound.

That was all. The bartenders breathed and looked again. Men were crowding like mad through the back doors. De Spain, at the cigar case, looking intently into the rainy street, lifted from the corner by a dingy lamp. The four men near him had not stirred, but, startled and alert, the right hand of each covered the butt of a revolver. De Spain moved first. While the pool players jammed the back doors to escape, he spoke to, without looking at, the bartender. "What's the matter with your curtains?" he demanded, snatching his revolver and pointing with an expletive to the big sheet of plate glass. "Is this the way you build up business for the house?"

Those close enough to the window saw that the bare pane had been cut, just above the middle, by two bullet holes. Curious men examined both fractures when De Spain and Lefever had left the saloon. The first hole was the larger. It had been made by a high-powered rifle; the second was from a bullet of a Colt's revolver; it was remarked as a miracle of gun-play that the two were hardly an inch apart.

In the street a few minutes later, De Spain and Lefever encountered Scott, who, with his back hunched up, his cheap black hat pulled well down over his ears, his hands in his trousers pockets and his thin coat collar modestly turned against the drizzling rain, was walking across the parkway from the station.

"Sassoon is in town," exclaimed Lefever with certainty after he had told the story. He waited for the Indian's opinion. Scott, looking through the water dripping from the brim of his seasoned derby, gave it in one word. "Wass," he amended with a quiet smile.

"Let's make sure," insisted Lefever. "Supposing he might be in town yet, Bob, where is he?"

Scott gazed up the street through the rain lighted by yellow lamps on the obscure corners, and looked down the street toward the black reaches of the river. "If he's here, you'll find him in one of two places. Tenison's—"

"But we've just come from Tenison's," objected Lefever.

"I mean, across the street, upstairs; or at Jim Kitchen's barn. If he was hurried to get away," added Scott reflectively, "he would slip upstairs over there as the nearest place to hide; if he had time he would make for the barn, where it would be easy to catch his ride."

Lefever took the lapel of the scout's coat in his hand. "Then you, Bob, go out and see if you can get the whole story. I'll take the barn. Let Henry go over to Tenison's and wait at the head of the stairs till we can get back there."

De Spain found go difficulty in locating the flight of marble stairs that led to the gambling rooms. It was the only lighted entrance in the side street. No light shone at the head of the stairs but a doorway on the left opened into a large room brilliantly lighted by chandeliers. Around three sides of this room were placed the keno layouts, roulette wheels, faro tables and mtooi gambling devices. Off the casino it self small cardrooms opened.

The big room was well filled for a wet night. De Spain took a place in shadow near one side of the doorway facing the street door and at times looked within for the loosely jointed frame, crooked neck, taut forehead and malevolent face of the cattle thief. He could find in the many figures scattered about the room none resembling the one he sought.

A man entering the place spoke to another coming out. De Spain overheard the exchange. "Duke got rid of his steers yet?" asked the first.

"Not yet."

"Slow game."

"The old man sold quite a bunch this time. The way he's playing bow he'll last twenty-four hours."

De Spain, following the newcomer, strolled into the room and, beginning at one side, proceeded in leisurely fashion from wheel to wheel and table to table inspecting the players. Few looked at him and none paid any attention to his presence. At Tenison's table the idlers crowded about one player whom De Spain, without getting closer in among the onlookers than he wanted to, could not see.

Tenison, as De Spain approached, happened to look up wearily. He spoke in an impressive tone across the intervening heads: "What happened to your red tie, Henry?"

De Spain put up his hand to his neck, and looked down at a loose end hanging from his soft cravat. It had been torn by the bullet meant for his head. He turned the end inside his collar. "A Calabassan man tried to untie it a few minutes ago. He missed the knot."

Tenison did not hear the answer. He had reverted to his case. De Spain moved on and, after making the round of the scattered tables, walked again through the doorway, only to meet, as she stood hesitating and apparently about to enter the room, Nan Morgan.

CHAPTER VII.

The Gambling Room.

They confronted each other blankly. To Nan's confusion was added her embarrassment at her personal appearance. Her hat was wet, and the limp shoulders of her khaki jacket and the front of her silk blouse showed the wilting effect of the rain. In one hand she clutched wet riding gloves. Her cheeks, either from the cold rain or mental stress, fairly burned, and her eyes, which had seemed when he entered the room, fired with some resolve, changed to an expression of dismay.

This was hardly for more than an instant. Then her lips tightened, her eyes dropped, and she took a step to one side to avoid De Spain and enter the gambling room. He stepped in front of her. She looked up, furious. "What do you mean?" she exclaimed with indignation. "Let me pass."

The sound of her voice restored his selfpossession. He made no move to get out of her way, indeed he rather pointedly continued to obstruct her. "You've made a mistake, I think," he said evenly.

"I have not," she replied with resentment. "Let me pass."

"I think you have. You don't know where you are going," he persisted, his eyes bent unconsciously on hers.

She showed increasing irritation at his attempt to exasperate her. "I know perfectly well where I am going," she retorted with heat.

"Then you know," he returned steadily, "that you've no business to enter such a place."

His opposition seemed only to anger her. "I know where I have business. I need no admonitions from you as to what places I enter. You are impertinent, insulting. Let me pass!"

His stubborn opposition showed no signs of weakening before her resolve. "One question," he said, ignoring her angry words: "Have you ever been in these rooms before?"

He thought she quailed the least bit before his searching look. She even hesitated as to what to say. But if her eyes fell momentarily it was only to collect herself. "Yes," she answered, looking up unflinchingly.

Her resolute eyes supported her defiant word and openly challenged his interference, but he met her once more quietly. "I am sorry to hear it," he rejoined. "But that won't make any difference. You can't go in tonight."

"I will go in," she cried.

"No," he returned slowly, "you are not going in—not, at least, while I am here."

They stood immovable. He tried to reason her out of her determination. She resented every word he offered. "You are most insolent," she exclaimed. "You are interfering in something that is no concern of yours. You have no right to act in this outrageous way. If you don't stand aside I'll call for help."

"Nan!" De Spain spoke her name suddenly and threateningly. His words fell fast, and he checked her for an instant with his vehemence. "We met in the gap a week ago. I said I was telling you the exact truth. Did I do it?"

"I don't care what you said or what you did—"

"Kie-Yie-Yie! Get Me 'Gets-It' Quick!"

2 Drops Make Corn "Fall" OFF!

"I've joined the Never-Again Club. Never again will I use anything for corns but 'Gets-It'. But 2 drops of 'Gets-It' on, and from that second the corn begins to shrivel, instead of swelling up like a little white sponge. Then it loosens from your foot—and, glory hallelujah! the corn comes off as though you'd take a glove off your hand."

"Gets-It" is the corn discovery of the age. More "Gets-It" is sold by many times than any other corn remedy in existence. Try it and you'll know the reason why. It takes two seconds to apply it, and it dries at once. That's all. Don't experiment—follow the experience of millions and use "Gets-It."

"I don't know or care—"

"Yes, you do know—"

"What you say or do—"

"I told you the truth then, and I am telling it now. I will never see you enter a gambling room as long as I can prevent it. Call for help if you like."

She looked at him with amazement. She seemed about to speak—to make another protest. Instead, she turned suddenly away, hesitated again, put both hands to her face, burst into tears, and hurried toward the stairs. De Spain followed her. "Let me take you to where you are going?"

Nan turned on him, her eyes blazing through her tears, with a single, scornful, furious word: "No!" She quickened her step from him in such confusion that she ran into two men just reaching the top of the stairs. They separated with alacrity, and gave her passage. One of the men was Lefever, who, despite his size, was extremely nimble in getting out of her urgent way, and quick in lifting his hat. She fairly raced down the flight of steps, leaving Lefever looking after her in astonishment. He turned to De Spain: "Now, who the deuce was that?"

AMERICA FIRST CAMPAIGN WILL BE NATION WIDE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Jan. 19.—The United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. P. C. Clayton, has issued a call for an "America First" conference to be held on February 3rd, immediately following the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America. This conference will deal with the industrial phase of Americanization and will be the first of a series of "America First" conferences to be known officially as the "National Conferences on Americanization Through Education."

The conference on February 3rd will be under the auspices of the Bureau of Education in the Department of the Interior, acting in co-operation with the National Committee of One Hundred. This committee was appointed by the Commissioner of Education September 1st, 1916, to assist the bureau in conducting the "America First" campaign. The committee on immigration of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America will also participate in the program.

The recorded co-operation of hundreds of industrial establishments and chambers of commerce in the "America First" campaign has brought into the foreground the demand for a definite plan of Americanization by industries and commercial organizations. For some months a tentative plan has been in process of formation in a series of consultations between bureau officials and the immigration committee of the chamber of commerce.

The bearing of this conference upon education and industry is significant. It will bring into practical relation employers and educators. This is effected by the nature of the call for the conference. Those invited include officials of chambers of commerce, plant, welfare directors, representatives of labor and immigration departments and commissions, and school authorities.

Each session of the conference will be opened with an address and then conducted as a round-table discussion of various questions printed in the program and relating to a national policy of Americanization.

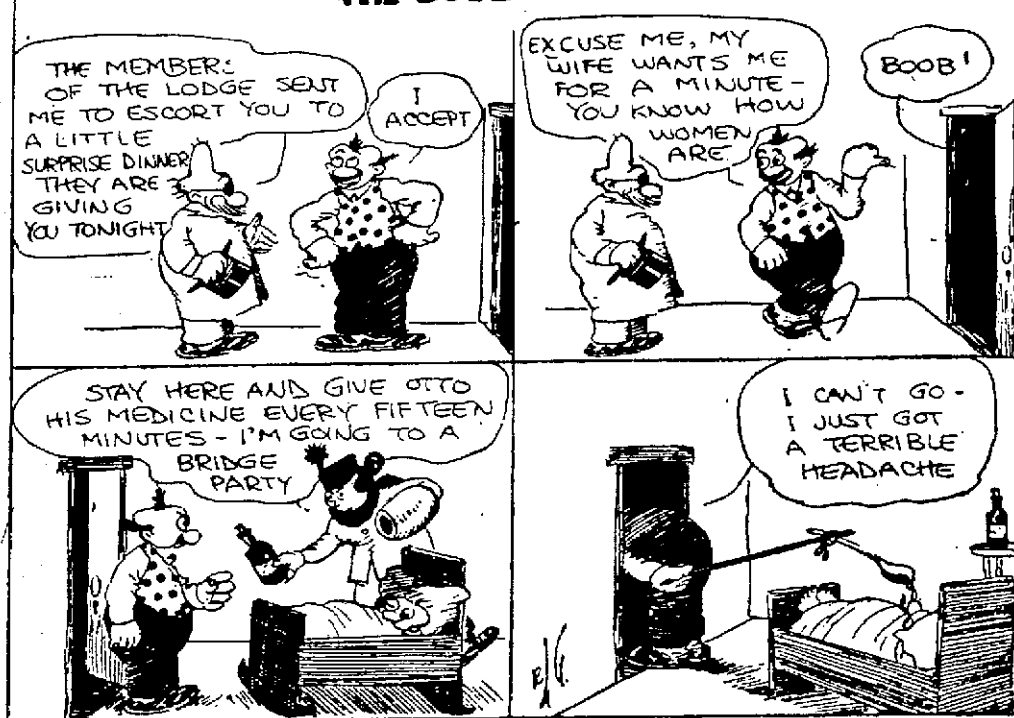

Owing to the growing interest of industrial men in the subject, it is expected that many delegates and others attending the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will remain over for the "America First" campaign conference.

Succeeding conferences will appeal to various other organizations, groups and individuals interested in general features of Americanization.

A Good Example.

THE BOOB FAMILY

An Effective Laxative For Growing Children

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Highly Recommended as a Family Remedy.

In children the slightest irregularity of the bowels has a tendency to disturb the entire digestive system, and unless promptly remedied invites serious illness. The experienced mother knows that by training her children to regularity in this respect, and when occasion arises administering a mild laxative, she will have little need for the doctor's services.

Mrs. Leo Weigand, 3251 Central Ave., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa., whose two boys, Frank and Joseph, are shown in the illustration, writes that she has found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a most effective laxative, not only for the children but also for herself, and that she will always keep it in the house to use when needed. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts easily and naturally, without griping or other pain or discomfort. It is pleasant to the taste so that children like it, and is equally effective on the strongest constitution.

Joseph Leo Weigand and Frank Joe Weigand

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents, and should have a place in every home. It will save many times its cost in lessened doctor bills and maintain the health of the entire family. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. WILSON SEES CONGRESSMEN EN MASSE, NOT INDIVIDUALLY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Jan. 19.—The Rooseveltian practice of seeing a maximum number of congressmen in a minimum space of time, has been adopted by President Wilson. Members of congress aren't very keen about the new system.

Instead of going in individually and spending from five minutes to half an hour with the president alone, representatives and senators now go into the president's office in a group of from three to twenty. Roosevelt adopted this practice when he was president.

The president passes from one to the other disposing of all of them in a few minutes, as compared with the old system.

In addition the president sees his callers now in the afternoon, making it even more difficult for congressmen to get in for they have to leave the floor of the capitol in order to confer with the executive.

But the president is behind in his work and he has to clear up the callers quickly in order to get to the stack of government papers piled high on his desk.

ENGLISH BARGAIN HUNTING BECOMES QUITE A PROBLEM

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, Jan. 19.—Women bargain hunters who have been going over the offerings in the new year bargain sales find this year an average increase of thirty per cent in woollens, silks and shoes, as compared with the bargain prices of a year ago. One of the big department stores has its counters decorated with notices informing shoppers that owing to the shortage of dress material, this month is probably the last time that it will be possible to order any materials on the bargain counter.

Ready to Preach the Gospel

By REV. W. W. KETCHUM
Director of the Practical Work Course,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—So as much as in me is I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also.—Rom. 1:15.

The Greek term which the word ready translates, does not have in it so much the idea of preparedness as it does eagerness. It gives us a picture of the apostle standing as it were on the tip of the imperial city, his countenance expressing the passion of his heart to preach the Gospel to the people of that city.

I can imagine as the apostle stands like a bound at length, eager to be off, someone tugging at his cloak and saying, "Don't go to Rome, Paul, to preach the Gospel of the cross. They will laugh your story to scorn. Rome, remember, was the home of Cicero, and his orations are still studied there, and Seneca is discoursing in the streets. Go to them, Paul, with a little sociology, religious pathology and ethical culture, but not with the word of the cross." And Paul answers back: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, to the Jew first and also to the Greek."

There are people today who tell us that the Gospel of the cross doesn't meet the modern mind. Well, I may know little of the modern mind, but I do know a great deal about the modern heart, and one thing is this, that it is still "deceitful above all things and desperately wicked," and, thank God, I know what can meet its needs and that is the cross of Christ. The trouble, friends, is not with our heads but with our hearts; let them be cleansed by the blood of Christ and the modern mind has no difficulty in understanding the story of the cross. Problems there may be, but the heart that knows the cleansing power of the blood clings in simple faith to the cross of Christ.

Then there are those who say that the cross of Christ does not meet the problem of today. What problems are there today that were not the problems of yesterday? What about the moral corruption of the times? Is it any worse than it was in Paul's day? When the apostle was eager to go to Rome, lecherous, reprobate Nero, who had sunk almost to the nethermost hell, was on the throne. If Paul was not desirous of going to Rome with a moral mud scow, but with the Gospel of Christ. He knew what some moderns do not know, that regeneration follows regeneration, and so he was eager to preach in that corrupt city the Gospel of the cross. What a lesson to some would-be preachers of today who, not knowing the power of the Gospel to regenerate society, are trying with their puny scoops to cleanse the cesspools of iniquity, when they have at their command the dynamite of God. We might just as well try to batter down a fortress with a popgun and toy pistol as to attempt to overcome the forces of evil in the world by any moral reformation which leaves out the cross of Christ.

But what about a world immersed in pleasure? Will the Gospel reach such a world? As Paul stood facing Rome, and with pleasure, he said, "I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also." And yet the city was almost altogether given over to pleasure. During the reign of Claudius, who preceded Nero on the throne, the gladiatorial games became almost an insane frenzy and in Nero's time, as we know, it was no better. Paul, however, was eager to go there with the Gospel. It is a great challenge that the pleasure-loving world gives to preachers of today. How shall we meet it? Shall they, in extremity, try something else besides the Gospel, or is the Gospel still the power of God unto salvation, even unto a pleasure-loving world? One of the saddest sights to behold is a ministry that has abandoned the Gospel and substituted in the place a sociological shovel and a pathological plaster. If he ever laughs it knows at such a substitution, for it laughs that makeshift will never meet the world's need and defeat hell.

Come on, preachers, the world challenges us, let us meet the challenge with Paul's "I am ready to preach the Gospel." What Gospel? Why, the Gospel of the cross, of course, for there is none other. And with Paul let us say, no matter what the world may say, we are not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. Why not ashamed? "Because it is the dynamite of God." That means it has in itself the power to do business for God. No wonder Paul, facing intellectual, corrupt, pleasure-loving Rome, said, "I am ready, I am not ashamed to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

First Quarter, Lesson III, John 1:35-49, January 21, 1917.

FIRST DISCIPLES OF THE LORD JESUS.

Jesus emerged from the wilderness, leaving behind him that "naked and arid mountain of malediction rising precipitously from a scorched and desert plain, and overlooking the bituminous waters of the Sodom Sea." In that awful solitude he had fasted and been with the wild beasts forty days. There he had met and foiled the tempter. There his Messianic character and work had fully dawned upon his consciousness. There he evolved his "plan," and the principles of procedure to which he faithfully adhered to the very close of his career.

He came back to the east concourse, standing the minister of the Baptist, to the Jordan as the Jordan as to a human quarry, from which he could select living stones as the foundation of that spiritual edifice he designed to rear. Nor was he disappointed. He found five out of twelve of the apostolic college there. John the Baptist, the lowly Jesus. The Nazarene, who gave him a joyous welcome. No shade of jealousy crossed his noble heart. He unequivocally cast the full weight of his phenomenal influence upon the side of the new Teacher, crying, "Behold God's Lamb, so much more precious than Aaron's, a Lamb that taketh up and beareth away the collective sin of a world!"

John the Baptist, the lowly Jesus. The Nazarene, who gave him a joyous welcome. No shade of jealousy crossed his noble heart. He unequivocally cast the full weight of his phenomenal influence upon the side of the new Teacher, crying, "Behold God's Lamb, so much more precious than Aaron's, a Lamb that taketh up and beareth away the collective sin of a world!"

reappeared, John repeated his significant exclamation with even increased emphasis. It was as if he had said, "Whoever wishes to leave me now, and follow this greater Teacher, is at full liberty to do so." Two of the choicest spirits among his converts, John and Andrew, take the hint, and separate themselves forever from the Baptist to follow the lowly Jesus. The Nazarene hears their footsteps; and, turning, encourages them with look and word. They are drawn to him, as iron to the magnet. Under the fresh-cut boughs of a pilgrim-boat, or in the cool depths of some grotto, they sit at their feet, and learn of him, their hearts burning within them as he unfolds to them the principles of his kingdom. Then and there was kindled in the human soul of Jesus that love which made John evermore his bosom companion. * * * Andrew coveted his brother's superior abilities for the service of his new-found Master. He rested not until he had convinced Peter, and had brought him to Jesus. The next day saw the addition of the fourth disciple in the person of Philip, who showed the spirit of a true convert by immediately bringing another to Jesus in the person of the guileless Israelite Nathanael (Bartholomew).

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
This, with that of Matthew iv. 18-22, constituted preliminary or probationary "calls" from which the disciples were afterward dismissed to attend to their worldly affairs, and familiar environments, and free from excitement of novel situations, to think on what they had seen and heard. Their third and last call is recorded in Luke v. 1-11. These calls were progressive. * * * The "Guild of Andrew and Philip" is the happiest and most significant name ever given to a young people's society. It is aimed at and met all in one. The aim is to bring to Jesus! The method is that of personal invitation and appeal. * * * The lamented J. O. Peck, one of the most successful of pastor-revivalists, employed this method. Dr. Buckley says, with his usual discrimination: "His main reliance was upon personal appeals in private. There, he argued, pleaded, and conquered, and which so many rely exclusively, were but the gathering in of sheaves." * * * It was about the tenth hour, John could never forget the precise time of day when he went in to the Lord's humble shelter, and heard him speak as man never did. So it was outwardly, which began him, quarter of nine o'clock in the evening when Wesley first felt his heart strangely warmed. * * * But the precision of memory need not trouble any one who lacks it. As some one suggests, because you can not name the particular hour when you learned to read, does not vitiate the fact of your ability to read. Many can read their heavenly titles who can not say when they first began to read them. * * * Jesus saw Nathanael in his deepest heart-struggle, when he was wrestling like Jacob, and there was as much of a tumult under the quiet fig-tree as beside foaming Jabbock. So Jesus sees us when we hunger and thirst for a blessing. And he who seeth in secret will reward us openly. * * * "Come and see," is still the Savior's gracious invitation. The experimental test is the "truest," most satisfactory of all. There is no substitute for it. * * * It is a striking figure of speech which pictures the names of the apostles, as graven on the walls of the new Jerusalem. It signifies the transcendence of their office and the fundamental relation in the evolution of the new humanity. It is also the divine recognition of the fidelity, courage and success with which these twelve men fulfilled their Lord's commands. Names of earthly rulers and commanders have been graven deep in the foundation of historic cities only to be effaced by the transience of time. Here is no transcription that can never suffer from the erosions of the centuries.

January 21, 1917. Philippines II. 1-11

SEEING GOOD IN OTHERS.
Seeing evil in others tends to become a habit, an unlovely and injurious one at that. One becomes censorious and carping if not finally a salacious purveyor in the prurient. It is always a short cut to blank pessimism. Jesus condemned the habit severely. He said, "Judge not!" He affirmed that those who found tiny mores in other people's eyes often had big timbers in their own. The opposite course is wise and helpful as well as pleasant. It is fitting that the pre-eminent joyous Epistle to the Philippians should be the one which especially exhorts to the seeing and seeking of good in others. It is a case of action and reaction. The misanthropic spirit finds nothing but evil and thus increases its man-hating temper. It turns philanthropy sour and increases "the gall of universal hate." Philanthropy on the contrary thrives on the very good which it discovers in others. This is the perennial fountain of joy.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Brookhead, Jan. 19.—Will, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coldren, living in the town of Spring Grove, was badly injured by a bull on Thursday. He had had the animal out to water when it suddenly attacked him, crushing him against the manger or stallion. A younger brother came to Will's rescue with a pitchfork, and no doubt saved his life.

Evansville Tramps Await Investigation Following Theft of Gum Machine and Contents

Evansville, Jan. 19.—Two members of the world wide brotherhood of "boes" characterized by an infection of the wanderlust, stoving much to their subsequent discomfort, were arrested on the local police register and later in Janesville, as Edward Haley of St. Louis and John Ambrose of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. The pair arrived here via a freight early in the evening possessed of little funds and exhaustive appetites. Both were considerably worse for previous indulging of the very fluid. Spying a mechanical gum vender on the local depot platform, they believed that chance had afforded them an easy method of mending their wants. Money they needed and gum was at least something to chew on. Taking the gum machine down into the railroad yards, they broke it open with an improvised jimmy and lifted the contents. The demolished machine was discovered early yesterday morning by Ed. Carey who immediately reported the find to the local police. In the meantime, night patrol Blunt had found the pair hanging around the yards and had lodged them in the cell until they should sober up. Following Carey's report, Chief Gilman investigated and suspecting the pair, separated them, later obtaining a confession from one of them. They were taken before Judge Maxwell in Janesville yesterday where they both pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred until January 22, and they are now lodged at the county jail under a bail of $500 each.

High School vs. U. High

Eight members of the high school basketball squad left for Madison this afternoon on the twelve o'clock train. They were scheduled to play the University high school this afternoon, the game being called at three thirty thus enabling them to make return to Janesville in time for the University high team, the locals are pitted against a strong team and will have to travel at high speed all the time if they even hold down their opponents, to say nothing of winning. The University high team is composed of older, heavier, and more matured material. Added to this disadvantage, the locals are also handicapped from a lack of work this past week due to continued sickness of different members of the squad. Those making the trip were: Blay, H. Hubbard, Toles, M. Colony, Baird, Cain, B. Hubbard and O. Colony.

Leotas Meet Oregon

In the game which the Evansville Leotas are scheduled to play against the Oregon city team, the Leotas will be opposed by the best team that they have met this season. At least this is the opinion of the local fans. The Leotas are a team which will maintain a victory over them will therefore be a decided feather in the Leota crown. The team will be composed of Jones and Schuster, forwards; Holmes, center; Antes and Adams, guards. This aggregation is aggressive and demands. They should therefore make the visitors travel a merry road to victory.

HOLD TWO FOR THEFT OF A GUM MACHINE

Evansville Tramps Await Investigation Following Theft of Gum Machine and Contents. Evansville, Jan. 19.—Two members of the world wide brotherhood of "boes" characterized by an infection of the wanderlust, stoving much to their subsequent discomfort, were arrested on the local police register and later in Janesville, as Edward Haley of St. Louis and John Ambrose of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. The pair arrived here via a freight early in the evening possessed of little funds and exhaustive appetites. Both were considerably worse for previous indulging of the very fluid. Spying a mechanical gum vender on the local depot platform, they believed that chance had afforded them an easy method of mending their wants. Money they needed and gum was at least something to chew on. Taking the gum machine down into the railroad yards, they broke it open with an improvised jimmy and lifted the contents. Poisoned by Thousands!

(By L. H. Smith, M. D.)
The victims of auto-intoxication are many thousands every day. By reason of the toxins, or poisons, bred in the intestines, these poisonous bacteria are sent all thru the blood channels and the victim feels tired, sleepy and headachy, or the brain doesn't work as usual. The best treatment for this is to drink hot water before breakfast—plenty of water all day and procure a supply of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, made of Mayapple, leaves of alfalfa, with no calomel, entirely vegetable, which can be obtained at drug stores for 25 cents. Equally important is it to cleanse kidneys and bladder, and drinking plentifully of pure water will cleanse them to a certain extent. Then obtain at the drug store a little Anuric. This is to be had in 50-cent packages. Anuric should be taken before meals. It is many times more potent than lithia, dissolving uric acid as water does sugar.

January 21, 1917. Philippines II. 1-11

SEEING GOOD IN OTHERS.
Seeing evil in others tends to become a habit, an unlovely and injurious one at that. One becomes censorious and carping if not finally a salacious purveyor in the prurient. It is always a short cut to blank pessimism. Jesus condemned the habit severely. He said, "Judge not!" He affirmed that those who found tiny mores in other people's eyes often had big timbers in their own. The opposite course is wise and helpful as well as pleasant. It is fitting that the pre-eminent joyous Epistle to the Philippians should be the one which especially exhorts to the seeing and seeking of good in others. It is a case of action and reaction. The misanthropic spirit finds nothing but evil and thus increases its man-hating temper. It turns philanthropy sour and increases "the gall of universal hate." Philanthropy on the contrary thrives on the very good which it discovers in others. This is the perennial fountain of joy.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

Many successful men have been merely good squirmers. I mean, if you are a failure in life it is because you wear the wrong kind of collar—a little too tight or a little too high. Perhaps you have a perpetual headache because your collar is too tight. Perhaps a WHOLE NEW WORLD would be opened up to you if you would wear a different kind of collar.

Now one thing is very true, and that is that success is not going to come to anybody just because he is nice. It is nice to be nice, but a mere observance of rules does not bring success. Success is not a reward. Of course, this is all guess work, this article.

Succeeding is like inventing. Inventing is largely a matter of squirming. Inventors get an idea, then they squirm and squirm until they find the way to make it work. Maybe they squirm 600 times or more before they find it. Then they do it.

Inventors, of course, have to have a DESIRE and an IDEA. Then they have to squirm and squirm.

Most of us have a desire, and most of us can get some idea of what we want to do—in fact, have. But we think we don't know the rules.

We guess the one and only rule is to "Try, try again."

But a more sensible way to say it is to say "Squirm, squirm again."

SOCIALIST EXPLAINS HOPES OF HIS PARTY

SOCIALIST MEMBER OF LEGISLATURE FROM MILWAUKEE TELLS OF AIMS OF PARTY IN STATE.

WILL VOTE AS A UNIT

We Shall Take Up the Battle for the Common People Whether We Have Received Their Support or Not.

By Herman O. Kent.
Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—If the question were asked one of the Socialist legislators, "What do the Socialists expect to accomplish and work for in the present session?" the answer would be immediately given: "We shall take up the battle for the common people—the great army of workers in field and factory, the small store for the child as well as the aged and infirm; we shall do this whether we have received their support in the election or not. We have been elected as representatives of the Socialist party of the state and with advantage of the experience and knowledge of our representatives in past sessions, we will do a better work for the people's interests than ever before."

The Socialist delegation will vote solidly as a unit on all important legislation—it is of benefit to the people, as we view legislation, we will support it; if it favors some corporation, the big interests, the monopolies, we will unreservedly oppose it. Our members in the legislature will not be influenced by any person or proposition, but will vote as a unit for the workers—only then will it receive our support or votes. It will not matter whether introduced by a Democrat or Republican, a measure emanating from the governor's supporters or from members opposed to his policy. Whatever the governor shall offer that will endeavor to benefit the masses will receive our support, measures that aim to further burden the workers in taking away rights and liberties will be watched, opposed and fought against at every opportunity. The Socialist is and for the principle that whatever industries and enterprises the people collectively must use and can better be operated by the state, for the common welfare of all the people, should be co-operatively and jointly owned and conducted by the state and the people, if any, referred to the people, we will oppose it vigorously. Our plans in our platform and enact them into law as speedily as possible. Realizing, of course, that these bills will not meet with favor from the present party owners and from the conservative members, so that we will not be successful to the extent that we should desire, this, however, will not discourage us in the least.

The Socialist shall endeavor to be guided by the broadest views on all legislation; we shall be guided by absolute fairness in all legislative matters, of our country, we shall likewise demand the fullest consideration in presenting the Socialist viewpoint on all labor and general measures we propose to introduce. We believe that the organized labor of the state through its central bodies and legislative committees will be able to assist us in many of the Socialist bills introduced at the best of these organizations.

It will not matter which of the Socialist members will be the author of a measure; it will be backed up solidly by our delegation and be sanctioned before introduction by the group. In this way we can ensure the introduction of any legislation not worthy or, for that matter, obnoxious, should be attempted. We shall hold regular and frequent conferences to discuss all pending bills, which likewise will give all Socialists elected the benefit of the combined views. Among the several subjects that we will be particularly interested in, first, the labor bill for the immediate benefit to the workers; second, the agricultural program for the farmers, and the conservation of natural resources; third, more just taxation and broader insurance; fourth, home rule for cities, and Milwaukee city legislation. Aside from this, it must be understood that we will have other subjects which will engage our attention both in favor and also in opposition of certain legislation. We shall stand ready to guard against any encroachment of private and monopolistic interests and the business to grab up and fasten their hold upon the resources of Wisconsin, such as the water power, timber, large tracts of land, and the taking away of the rights and powers of the people and municipalities.

Secondly, prevent the heavy taxation from securing control of the educational institutions of the state, and on the contrary, make possible the fullest opportunity for an education to every boy and girl in Wisconsin. Of direct and immediate benefit to the toilers of Wisconsin, as Socialists, we will present and hope to be enacted into law measures for a ten-hour day; the right to strike and peaceful picketing, and the elimination of injunctive orders in labor disputes; the right of the workers to organize, especially in railroads and public utilities. Much emphasis will be laid on the shortening of hours to workers and the betterment of general working conditions. We also propose to have the scale of compensation under the compensation law materially increased, both for labor and death.

Another important bill which we will press in the present session will be health, disability and maternity insurance—a new innovation in Wisconsin legislation and a platform plank of the Socialist party in the last election. Likewise advocated by the State Federation of Labor.

Further, a law will be sought in this work to improve the conditions and state work at current wages and on eight-hour day basis, thereby fostering development in many lines. Other equally desired legislation we will strive for is a weekly day of wage in all principal industries; a constitutional amendment to permit the erection of a state-owned printing plant for the printing of all state work, including school books, enabling the people to realize a big saving; minimum wage; a health and preventive law; industrial education and the strengthening and classification of the child labor and hours for women laws, and also, giving the industrial commission power to regulate the hours and working conditions of domestics.

Part of the farmers' program will be the elimination of speculation in land, the taking of the holdings of large companies in order to bring this land into occupancy and production; the opening of state lands to actual settlers. One of the big struggles will be precipitated on the change in the state constitution to give the state power to erect and operate state grain elevators, storage plants and warehouses, wharves, etc., in order to eliminate speculation in farm products and also facilitate the handling and marketing of foodstuffs. Since this will have a general bearing on the high cost of living this will go in removal of the debt limit, which in Wisconsin cannot be in excess of $100,000 in order to permit the execution of the projects such as co-operative institutions and state-owned undertakings. Also, we will advocate a law allowing co-operative banking in connection with co-operative enterprises; co-ownership of the money of the state on mortgages and warehouse receipts.

The insurance laws will be broadened to enable the state to engage in the insurance business on a more extended scale. In the matter of land and taxation, we shall endeavor to prohibit the purchasing of large tracts of land by corporations, held idle for increase in value without aiding to create the higher price, and will advocate proper legislation to cover this subject. We will also advocate a law to tax the land values and have the community which creates it get the benefit of this so-called unearned increment; the extinction of all improvements from taxation; a graduated and progressive income tax, and also a 21 per cent minimum graduated inheritance tax, the state to engage in agricultural and forestry work on lands now in its possession, or to be acquired in the future; a law that title to land improved with state aid can be lost solely through use or occupancy.

In accordance with our platform, we will endeavor to get the best system and the most improved roads possible. Probably one of the biggest items before the legislature will be the battle for giving municipalities a freer way in the management of their own affairs. Therefore a home rule amendment will be introduced and every effort will be made to secure its passage. Law is desired to give municipalities the right to regulate the purchasing of these utilities, as the present system of regulation by the railway commission is inadequate to cope with the transportation problems, especially in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee will demand its share of legislation deemed necessary for municipal progress, and will seek to have the common council reduced by the elimination of the twelve aldermen-at-large and retain the district representation of twenty-five aldermen at present. The election of the mayor every four years (now every two years), commencing with 1918, with power to appoint all heads of departments—city treasurer, city controller, tax commissioner, and the like, and all these offices to expire with the term of the mayor. This is deemed necessary to work in harmony and to produce the most efficient results for the co-operation of an administration for the best interests of the people. We would practically be a return to the rule of a complete Socialist administration, as was given the city of Milwaukee during the Socialistic administration of 1910 when all heads of departments, together with the aldermen and mayor, held regular caucuses and thus brought unification into city affairs. The proposed law is necessary to overcome the present non-partisan law which was enacted four years ago and advocated as the instrument of redemption, but which has proved totally inadequate in giving satisfaction and, on the other hand, has resulted in chaos and disorganization and confusion generally, administered by nearly all students of city affairs.

Some other legislation which Milwaukee as a city will seek is the annexation of outlying territory; an increase in the city limits; the expansion in the building of school houses and educational system generally, the sum realized from the one mill tax being insufficient to meet the growing needs.

The Socialists will work hard to give Milwaukee the legislation, and much more, as the civic organizations and city club, one of the city's leading organizations, together with other progressive bodies, will no doubt advocate its passage, having in several instances approved and fostered it. We shall try to work in the broadest terms for the best city government possible.

With the present regulation policy in Wisconsin unsatisfactory to the people in general, with the Socialist delegation practically the sole force that the corporation interests fear; with our ideas and principles better understood by the people; with the backing of the organized labor movement of the state as two years ago, and other progressive organizations, and with the Socialist legislators waging an energetic campaign for the rights of the wage earners and the industrially oppressed and afflicted of Wisconsin, we expect to see great activity in the 1917 legislature for considerable legislation proposed and also in actual results attained, and to add to the work already accomplished for the toilers in the dozen years that Socialists have had a voice in the Wisconsin legislative halls, in which time more labor and progressive laws were passed than in probably two or three decades preceding.

The Socialists will be ready when the legislature proceeds to business to lead the fight for this progress in behalf of the people—that is our mission as assemblymen and senators—to serve the people—work for the reconstruction of laws to enable co-operation and socialization—the battle against injustice—to secure justice and equality in life for the masses.

The Three Friends.
Answering the question, "Who were the three friends mentioned by Whitier in his poem, 'Tent on the Beach,' written about 1887, the Philadelphia Press says:
"The 'fettered magnate lording o'er an ever widening realm of books' is certainly James T. Fleck, the poet, publisher and critic; the 'dream born' philosopher is supposed to be Ralph Waldo Emerson and by some Whittier himself, and 'one whose Arab face was tanned by tropic suns and boreal frost' is Bayard Rustin."

STATE INCOME TAX OVER FIVE MILLION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—A total income tax of $5,344,393.51 was assessed against the corporations and individuals of the state to be collected this month, according to the assessment of the state tax commission today. This is the first announcement of the total amount of income taxes which will be collected and shows an increase of $1,500,000 over the amount assessed last year.

Complete reports on individual income taxes have just been compiled by the commission and show that individuals will pay this year $1,607,213.35, as compared with $1,376,269.80 assessed last year. The corporation income tax for this year is $3,742,180.16, as compared with $2,461,070.21 assessed last year.

The following table shows the income tax assessed for the past five years:

Year	Corporation Tax	Individual Tax
1912	$2,498,545.41	$952,690.25
1913	2,795,184.88	1,289,212.52
1914	2,724,466.78	1,421,209.70
1915	2,461,070.21	1,376,269.80
1916	3,742,180.16	1,607,213.35

The largest individual income tax will be assessed in the city of Milwaukee, the figure for that county is $734,327.36.

The smallest individual income tax will be collected in Florence county, where the amount assessed is $447.58. Ashland county will collect an individual income tax of $13,104.08; Dane, $66,137.74; Douglas, $29,726.58; La Crosse, $35,668.59; Lincoln, $3,747.71; Racine, $99,163.53; Rock, $3,496.27; Brown, $20,240.56; and Winnebago, $51,384.03.

One of the noticeable features of the income tax is that the amount collected from corporations during the past season is an increase of approximately $1,300,000 over the previous year. This shows prosperity among manufacturers.

SUBMITS AMENDMENT FOR A SINGLE TAX

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—Assemblyman Edward Nordman's joint resolution to amend the state constitution to provide for a single tax in Wisconsin in modified form, was presented in the assembly this morning. He proposes to amend the taxation article of the state constitution by adding the following amendment:

"The legislature shall have power to authorize counties, towns, cities and villages by a vote of the electors therein, to exempt from taxation, in whole or in part, designated classes of property; but the value of such property shall be included in the assessment and equalization for state taxes, and the value of such property exempted by any town, city or village shall be included in the assessment and equalization for state and county taxes."

The resolution is practically a copy of the one which passed the legislature in 1912 and was defeated in the assembly in 1915. Before the state constitution can be changed the proposed amendment must pass two successive sessions of the legislature by a majority vote and then be submitted to a vote of the people. Should this resolution pass this legislature, it would again be submitted to the 1919 session of the legislature and then to a vote of the people at the full election in 1920. The resolution leaves it to the county to adopt the plan but Assemblyman Nordman declares that when once adopted a number of the counties in the northern part of the state would immediately avail themselves of its provision. His idea is that such a resolution permitting the exemption of improvements would attract settlers to northern Wisconsin and would facilitate its early settlement.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of Janesville Gazette:

Most sincerely I wish to thank you for an opportunity to express the soul's sincere desire of the multitude. One of the most important things to come before the public is the need of a woman's building. No one questions the need, but how to start right is the question. It is a big and ambitious thing to decide.

Is there a man or woman in Janesville who is self sacrificing enough to undertake the work? The incentive to start now and make the building a memorial to our beloved Mrs. Janet B. Day is causing hearts to throb and hands reach out ready for action. This project she had so determined to accomplish that she had talked to the architect, Mr. Blair, and submitted her plans. She thoughtfully and carefully explained to him her heart's desire.

Truly Dr. J. W. Laughlin paid a tribute to our most dearly beloved when he said, "Not born to a life of affluence and ease, but a life of purposeful toil, she was proud of her inheritance." So proud that she wanted to transmit it to anyone she could reach.

It mattered little to her if it was the public or the individual she was helping, she gave herself devotedly. Let us exert ourselves to the utmost to bring about her heart's desire. Who will lead?

Onward and Upward.

"What has become of the man who used to rock the boat?"

"He has progressed with the times."

He is not satisfied now unless he is musing upon the equilibrium of an aeroplane."—Exchange.

The Daily Novelette

THE INDESCRIBABLE SOMETHING

Charity begins at home, but reform is generally practiced on our neighbors.—Prof. Simp.

(A Society Story.)
(Synopsis of preceding chapters: At a bathing suit and champagne party on the beach at Freshport, Chauncey Van Slat, the last of the old family, catches a glimpse of the most beautiful blonde he has ever seen. There is an indescribable something about her that leads Van Slat, when he finds she is on her way around the world, to follow her in quest of an introduction. At once, eleven continents and thirty grand divisions he follows her, always spurred on by that indescribable something, always lured just as an introduction seemed imminent. They get stranded together on the Syrix Islands, but even there neither understood the strange language, and no introduction follows. The indescribable something about her haunts him day and night, however, and finally he determines to brave the conventions and introduce himself. He tells her his name once, which she is gathering tuckle snicks on the beach.)

Conclusion.
"There is an indescribable something about you that almost makes me think we must have known each other in another life," he cried. "No," she laughed low and sweetly. "No, this life," she explained. "I am your second divorced wife. I was a brunette in the days when we were—"

Her voice broke, and he crushed her in his arms, vowing to divorce his eighth wife in four months if it took five thousand dollars.
